The Social Color Line. We are gradually getting worked up and educated to a toleration of things our prejudices once taught us were not obstacles, but impossibilities. We remember the opposition during the late civil war to arming the negroes, although it was admitted that a Confederate killed by a black was just as dead as if shot by a white man. And it was known, on the contrary, that if the armed negro was slaughtered, instead cl a proud and more valuable Anglo-American, the satisfaction was general and conclusive among the whites. Again, what a bitter opposition there was to giving citizens of African descent the right to vote. And this, although the men most bitter in their opposition, were to realize largely on the change. Through all, however, 1u3s the solemu re solve that socially the color line should be ree served. No miscegenation for us. No social equality for the delicate and reliaed men and women of our race. But gradually the color line is being wiped out in this respect also. To day Senator Brues fetches his bride to Washingtor, and, opening his house on Capitol Hill, calls on the female end of the Goverment to call and take Mrs. Secator Bruce by the hand.

"Scott's wha ha whom Bruce has led" In many a political fight look anxiously to see whether their leader and his accomplished lady will be recognized as social equals at the national capital. It is rumored that Senator Bruce has received assurances. It is said that not only will senators' wives and ladies of the Cabinet call on Mrs. B., but Mrs. Hayes will invite her to re-

will not allow herself to be tempted into chicken salad and milk for refreshments. We are told that this combination, so productive of colic. has sent people doubled up from the White House, yowling like Indians. A hint to the charming Mrs. B. is enough. But if Mrs. Senator Bruce receives with "the first lady of the land," as Ruff Ingalls put it on white satio, may not our excellent colored ceive with her at the Executive Mausion. It this be so, we trust that Mrs. Senator Bruce friends of the District call? En! why not? When Fred. Douglass was appointed marshal for the District it had been the duty of his predecessors to introduce at the White House levees. Fred. is socially ambitious, and he not only employed Marini to teach him how to bow, but was wont to frequent the Senate gallery that he might study Lord Roscoe Conk-ling. The President, with a dexterous touch of diplomacy, disappointed Fred, by cutting off the presenting part of his duties. Now, however, the creme de la creme of the Executive Mansion-not the milk given the guests after fish-takes the thing to hand, and we are toface the music-the music of the union between whites and blacks - Wash. Capital. Senator Bruce, who has been travelling in Europo with his bride since his marriage in Juce, is expected to arrive here soon, and has engaged a handsome residence on Capital Hill for the remainder of his Senotorial term, which expires on the 4th of March, 1881. There is some social agitation here with regard to the manner in which Mrs. Bruce will be received by the swells of Washington. She is a lady of fice personal appearance, au octoroop, and is perhaps better educated than most of the women who intend to soub her if she presumes to enter society. She was a school teacher in Cleveland, but her husband has sufficient wealth to gratify any taste she may have in the way of personal adornment. and it is whispered that a wardrobe purchased by her in Europe would be prized by any of our belles. It is a requirement of social etiquette here that all the Ustinet ladies and the wives of Congressmen shall make the first call upon a Senator's wife, and the wives of the older Senators always make the approach to an acquain tance with the wives of new Senators.

attempted an entrance to Washington society was Mrs. Piochback, six years ago, and being both beautiful and accomplished, she was not only treated with civility, but made quite a lioness. - Wash. Cor. Chicago Inter Ocean.
